SINKING FUND IS APPORTIONED TO THE BOND ISSUES

John D. Smith Concludes Intricate Calculation For the City.

In Accordance With Decree of Court.

DIVIDED BETWEEN DEPOSITS.

In accordance with the order of the court of appeals, Prof. John D. Smith, acting city auditor, has concluded the intricate calculation of the apportionment of the city sinking fund and accrued interest to the various bond issues, the sinking fund is divided to eventually retire this order resulted from ex parte proceedings to ascertain whether the city has the right to use the sinking fund to retire certain designated bonds, or whether it must be apportioned pro rata among the various bond issues, having regard to the time of their issuance. The court held that the sinking fund should be apportioned as it is deposited, and so it became necessary for an expert accountant to perform this task for the city, since the sinking fund has always been deposited in a lump without reference to the particular bond issues.

There are $54,482.42 in the sinking fund, and the result of Professor Smith's calculations show:

$8,211.91 is credited to the N. O. & O. bonds of $15,000, issued August 1, 1883, and due August 1, 1928.

$943.82 is credited to C. O. & R. H. bonds of $20,000, issued May 2, 1904, and due May 2, 1924.

$4,798.22 is credited to the N. O. & O. H. bonds of $60,000, issued July 1, 1900, and due July 1, 1920.

$251.03 is credited to the P. & M. gravel road bonds of $1,600, issued July 1, 1899, and due July 1, 1909.

$119.39 is credited to the P. & M. gravel road bonds of $800, issued July 1, 1890, and due July 1, 1910.

$195.91 is credited to the P. & M. gravel road bonds of $1,600, issued January 10, 1894, and due January 10, 1914.

$16,134.45 is credited to the C. S. L. & P. H. bonds of $100,000, issued December 1, 1888, and due December 1, 1918.

$6,217 is credited to the street improvement bonds of $150,000, issued August 1, 1904, and due August 1, 1934.

$1,026.32 is credited to the new city hospital bonds of $25,000, issued August 1, 1901, and due August 1, 1931.

$1,026.32 is credited to the market house bonds of $25,000, issued August 1, 1904, and due August 1, 1934.

The amounts apportioned to the N. O. & O. bonds of August 1, 1883, is divided between the deposits as follows: Citizens Savings bank, $7,859.37; City National, $1,352.57; C. O. & R. HELMAN KILLED SELF AND BLAMED THE GIRL

New Orleans, Jan. 12.—The police received a remarkable letter, written by William H. Helman, a Terre Haute jeweler, before his death from poison Monday. The letter intimated that Elsie Salisbury, arrested here, was a white slave agent and asked for her arrest on her arrival. The girl is arrested, but the police say the letter shows that Helman committed suicide and attempted to throw the blame on the girl on account of jealousy. He made a statement on his deathbed charging that Elsie poisoned him.

Governor Willson Denies Charges of Senator Salman, Regarding the State Board of Control in Senate

Insurgents in Upper House Win Another Victory in Fight Over Adoption of Rules.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 12. (Special.)—In the house today a brief session was held, nothing important being done.

When the senate met, Senator Conn Linn submitted a new report of the committee on rules, which gave to the lieutenant governor power to refer bills to various committees, instead of putting the matter up to the rules committee. A scrap followed as a result of objections to having the rules read in full, but the insurgents and Republicans here scored another victory.

The Rules Were Adopted.
The vote on rules was delayed by Governor Cox being called from the room and his word, from the special committee, appointed to confer about the payment of legislators and teachers. The committee recommends that teachers be paid out of the cash on hand and legislators be paid in interest bearing warrants.

Governor Willson sent in a statement, denying the charge of Senator Salman that he had attempted to destroy the bi-partisan nature of the state board of control. He said Dr. Board did not defeat any plan to remove all Democratic officials at any time. Such action was not even contemplated.

In the Senate.
Senator Mark Ryan yesterday introduced a bill in the senate to prohibit the sale of opium and its salts, except when purchased on a prescription of a regularly licensed physician.

At the last annual meeting of the Kentucky Pharmaceutical association the association went unanimously on.

Seven West Kentucky High Schools Contest

The third annual oratorical contest between representatives of the high school in the Oratorical League of Western Kentucky High Schools will be held in Paducah February 25. Already the students of the high schools are preparing for the reception to be given the visiting orators, and have secured the Kentucky denier for the contest. Owing to the interest in the league, it is thought that the playhouse will be packed on the night of the orations.

The primary contest to determine the representative of the high school will be held the last of this month or the first week in February. Among those who have announced their intention of entering the primary are: Misses Virginia Warren and Ruth McChesney, and Messrs. Marvin Sills and Charles Endrine. It is hoped to have more candidates in the field, as the larger the number of candidates the greater the interest.

All the other high schools have announced their primary contests. Madisonville, last year's winner, has twelve candidates and another hard battle with the high school may be expected. The details of the contest will be announced later, as it is intended to show the visitors a royal reception. The high schools in the league are: Madisonville, Paducah, Henderson, Owensboro, Princeton, Hopkinsville and Paducah.

MOB FRUSTRATED AND VIENNA JAIL IS WELL GUARDED

Would Have Gathered There But No Trains Were Run Into the Town.

Meanwhile Governor Sent Soldiers to Vienna.

AFTER TWO OF MURDERERS.

Vienna, Ill., Jan. 12.—A special force of deputies, with four companies of militia, guard the jail and do not fear a lynching today of the three negroes, Harry Taborn, Hosen Taborn and Alexander Jenkins, arrested for the murder of Allen Clark, a rural mail carrier, who was shot Saturday and died last night.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 12.—When Governor Deneen last night received the call for assistance from Sheriff Mathis, of Johnson county, who said a riot was threatened at Vienna, the governor immediately ordered Captain Satterfield, of Mt. Vernon, Gretna, of Cairo, Cody, of Paris, and Swain, of Danville, with their companies of the Fourth Illinois Infantry, to report at once to Sheriff Mathis for duty. All orders from the governor were stamped "at once."

The sheriff said he was informed that a mob was forming at Eldorado and Harrisburg and planned to go to Vienna on a freight train. At Vienna, it was planned to mob the jail and lynch three negroes said to have been guilty of murder. According to the sheriff's story a rural mail carrier, Allen Clark, was shot Saturday night on a train en route from Vienna to Harrisburg by three negroes named Louis Taborn, Harry Taborn and Alex Jenkins. These men are now held at Vienna.

To further forestall the reported mob the governor telegraphed Superintendent Maloney of the Cairo division of the Big Four railroad, ordering him not to transport any such crowd as described by Sheriff Mathis.

Governor Deneen also issued a special order to Mathis to swear in special deputies and to take every precaution to enforce the law to the letter.

Mobs Frustrated.

Vienna, Jan. 12.—Mobs that formed at Eldorado and Harrisburg to lynch the three negroes here, charged with murdering Allen Clark, a mail carrier, was frustrated when they could not get a train to bring them here.

On instructions from the sheriff the Big Four officials refused to permit freight trains to continue hither from danger points. None were run until this morning at 8 o'clock.

The jail is heavily guarded, the sheriff having sworn three hundred deputies, nearly every available man in the village, to protect the prisoners.

Clark, who was assaulted by three negroes Saturday night, died at six o'clock last evening. The report of his death aroused popular sentiment against the slayers to a frenzy, particularly at Harrisburg, his home.

Mobs of between three and five hundred persons each formed there and at Eldorado and were waiting aens of transportation here when Sheriff Mathis took prompt precautions to protect the prisoners, appealing to the governor for troops.

Big Officers Ordered Out.

Springfield, Jan. 12.—Acting Adjutant General Dickson has ordered Major Baumgart, of Danville, to proceed at once to Vienna to command the battalion. Col. Lang, of Jacksonville, of the fourth infantry, was also ordered to Vienna.

Hiram Smedley Case is Continued Because of Absence of Witnesses and Criminal Business is Closed

Defendant's Attorneys File Affidavit That Smedley Frequently Signed County Judge's Name.

Trial of Hiram Smedley on the charge of forgery was continued until the April term of circuit court this morning. Attorneys for the defense filed affidavits, that owing to the absence of witnesses it would be impossible to enter into trial. The commonwealth declined to admit the statement in the affidavit and the case was continued.

In the indictment it is charged that Smedley forged the name of R. T. Lightfoot, former county judge, to county warrants, and cashed the warrants with merchants. In the affidavit the attorneys recite that the sheriff has been unable to get service on Miss Lizzie Edgington, who was deputy county clerk under Smedley's administration. They say by her testimony they expect to prove that it was a custom for Judge Lightfoot to call up Smedley over the telephone, and instruct him to write out a warrant for salary. Frequently, it is alleged, that Smedley would cash the checks or would take the money to Lightfoot. Not only did Smedley sign Lightfoot's name to the warrants, but the attorneys in the affidavit say they will prove by the testimony of Miss Edgington that it was the custom for her to draw warrants, sign the county judge's name, and send him the money.

The first of the affidavits is: "It was the custom of R. T. Lightfoot, who was county judge of McCracken county, to telephone to this affiant that he desired this affiant to draw a warrant on the county treasurer for a part of his salary or such sums as he desired to draw at the time, and it was the custom of the said Lightfoot on such occasions to ask this affiant if he had the money in the drawer to cash the said warrant and to endorse his name."

Other reasons are given. By reason of his confinement in the asylum and the county jail the attorneys say that Smedley has been unable to assist them properly in the preparation of a defense of the charge. They also allege that the prisoner has not been given the proper medical treatment.

Smedley was in court today, and he looked more haggard than usual. He kept his face buried in his hands while the attorneys prepared the affidavit. His face was without color, and he presented a wretched appearance.

No More Drugs.

Circuit Judge William Reed instructed County Jailor Houser that morphine or any drugs must not be allowed to be passed to the prisoner. He said Smedley could have visitors in his cell, but that they must be watched, and everything sent to him examined so that drugs could not be smuggled into his cell.

Criminal Term Ends.

The criminal term of circuit court practically has been closed. The docket was disposed of this morning, and all of the petit jurors were discharged by Circuit Judge William Reed. The grand jury is still in session, and more indictments will be returned but it is the custom to try them at the next term of court. The docket was disposed of unusually quick this term.

Judge Reed announced this morning that he would meet all of the lawyers tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock for purpose of hearing any motions or orders.

Three indictments were returned this morning by the grand jury. Tom McCreary was indicted for petit larceny, but the indictment was dismissed. Two indictments were not given out, because the defendants were not before the court.

C. H. Crossland, who has been special court reporter, was sworn in as the official court reporter. He succeeds Miss Mamie Cooley, C. H. Crossland was sworn in as an examiner also.

Frank Campbell, colored, charged with breaking into a store, was granted a new trial, and the indictment against him was dismissed.

WILL BACK UP HIS SUGGESTION CONCERNING CONTROL OF RAILROAD.

Berlin, Jan. 12.—The success of Secretary Knox's plan for the internationalization of Manchurian railways was boosted today when Germany's agreement to the plan was sent to Washington. Germany sees nothing in the proposal is inconsistent with the open door policy, the equal opportunities for all nations, which has been the basis of the German policy in the far east. Germany's acceptance is expected to have a strong influence in Japan, especially since England, Japan's ally, has agreed.

After the Labor Vote.

London, Jan. 12.—Conservative leaders have adopted new tactics in their effort to convince voters that the adoption of protection as proposed will work great industrial benefit. Young Waldorf-Astor, a Conservative parliamentary candidate, says he will give $2,500 to charity if food prices increased during the first year's operation of the proposed tariff. Charles Bayer, a Huth manufacturer, makes the same offer if he does not increase the number of his employees within one year under the protective policy. Other similar offers are causing some workmen to believe the end of their troubles will come with the adoption of protection.

KNOX NOTE WAS ANTICIPATED

RUSSIAN MINISTER OF FINANCE HAD NEUTRALIZATION OF IDEA.

Proposed liquidation of the Russian claim in Manchuria before leaving on tour of East.

SECRET MEMORANDUM IS OUT

St. Petersburg, Jan. 12.—The Russian prints a secret memorandum presented by Minister of Finance Kokovsov to the cabinet before his trip to the far east and which anticipates the American proposal for the neutralization of the Manchurian railways. Discussing the Chinese pretensions to the administration of the railroad zone, which he believed to be unjust, M. Kokovsov said:

"If an insistence on our condition is impossible without risking a war, and we are not prepared to support our demands with arms, then the sole solution appears to be the liquidation of our concession after the expiration of the term of our contract and the completion of the Amur railroad."

The minister's reference to the expiration of the term of contract is to the date 1922, after which China will have the right of purchase. Continuing, M. Kokovsov said:

"Under these circumstances the most satisfactory issue of the difficult relations between Russia and China would be the transfer of the administration of the East Chinese railroad to a special international organization, each nation taking over a part of our invested capital and a corresponding share of the guaranteed revenues." The date of liquidation must depend upon the construction of the Amur railway as otherwise Primorsky province would be cut off from Russia.

IN CONGRESS

Guard encampments, while the army appropriation bill was before the house.

Mr. Hay said the administration did not really mean to reduce its expenditure permanently, but that if it did the economy should not be practiced at the expense of the citizen soldier, upon whom the country would have to rely if it got into trouble.

Finds Many Enemies.
An amendment by Representative Mann, of Illinois, reduced the appropriation to $1,000,000 in the interest of economy. It was opposed by Representatives Knapp, of New York; Prince, Illinois; Kahn, California; Craig, Alabama, and Sulzer, New York.

Counts the Democrats.
The amendment was voted down, and Mr. Mann called for a division. Only nine members supported it, but while the "nays" were being counted Mr. Mann was on his feet counting the Democrats who voted against his amendment.

"You Democrats are always shouting economy," he cried in derision, "but the first opportunity you get to practice it four-fifths of the Democrats on the floor vote against it."

Less Money for Fortifications.
Washington, Jan. 12.—Fortifications for the United States and insular possessions for the year 1911 will cost $5,617,200, over two and a half millions less than for 1910. If the house adopts the recommendations of the appropriation committee, the committee cut the department's estimates for the coming year $1,199,524.56.

The largest single item in the appropriation is for the sea coast batteries of the Philippine Islands, where it is recommended that $300,000 be expended during the coming year. For light and power plants in the Philippines $45,000 is recommended, for searchlights for important harbors in the islands $139,000, with some thousands of dollars for scattering items, including $7,000 for the reclaiming of land for fortification purposes.

The total for fortifications in the Philippines and Hawaii is $2,689,300. The sum of half a million is recommended for sea coast guns and carriages and for the purchase and manufacture and test of land turrets $624,800.

Two hundred thousand dollars is recommended for the construction of fire control stations and accessories. The total for armament and fortifications for defense in the United States is $1,970,000, the principal item in which is one of $600,000 for mountain, siege and field cannon and equipment. An appropriation of $440,000 is recommended for ammunition and snail-shell guns for sea coast artillery practice, which is practically the same amount appropriated for the present year. The sum of $200,000 appears for searchlights for important harbors and $200,000 for the construction of fire control stations, range finders, etc. The estimate of $370,000, to be used for the attention and maintenance of sea coast artillery, is allowed in the bill.

The principal cuts from the 1910 appropriation are in ammunition for sea coast guns, sea coast batteries in the Philippines, alteration and main-

BESSIE VAN DORN IS NOW FAMOUS, THOUGH SINGLE.

Pretty Bessie DeVoe, the dancer who has brought suit against Frank F. Gould for breach of promise, formerly resided in Paducah. Here, however, she is known as Bessie Van Dorn. Since going on the stage she has adopted another name. When in Paducah she resided with her parents on Jackson street near Eleventh street. Her father was an engineer and was killed in an accident. Later the girl with her mother removed to Mattoon, Ill., to reside with relatives.

The children returned to Paducah later, and in order to satisfy their yearning for the footlights, their mother removed east. Bessie Van Dorn gained a reputation as a dancer. Her sister followed same life, and is now a snake charmer.

BARONESS POSSESSED NOTHING PRIOR TO LIAISON.

Princess Louise Criticized for Pushing Suits to Dispossess Baroness of Chateau.

THE VAUGHAN CASE IS HEARD

Paris, Jan. 12.—The appeal of the Baroness Vaughan from that part of the decision of November 22 in which the court ordered an inventory of her property at Balnecourt, was heard today. Decision was reserved for one week.

In the course of his pleading, the attorney for the baroness severely criticized the action of Princess Louise in tying up the appellant's property in Belgium and France, pointing out that her sisters, Clémence and Stepanie, had refused to join in the undisciplined proceeding of dispossessing the extent of their father's liberality toward the baroness.

The attorney for the baroness based his argument on three points: First, that Baroness Vaughan possessed nothing before her association with the late King Leopold, second, the Chateau Balnecourt was purchased, remodeled and maintained at the expense of Leopold, and third he spent much of his time at Balnecourt, notably during the month preceding his departure for London.

CITY PHYSICIAN BASS' BUGGY IS OVERTURNED.

And Occupants Are Dragged Before Horse Got Stopped—Not Serious.

Narrow escape from serious injuries or death was experienced at 10 o'clock last night by City Physician W. J. Bass and Mr. Conley Alcock, of Lone Oak, when Mr. Bass' buggy overturned at Tenth street and Broadway. The frightened horse dashed off out Tenth street, dragging both men several yards. Finally Mr. Alcock succeeded in pulling the animal down. Aside from a few scratches and bruises neither was hurt.

Dr. Bass was going out on a call and was driving west on Broadway. In making the turn at Tenth street south he was blinded by the street light, and failed to see the curbing. Turning sharply, the buggy turned turtle plunging the physician under it. Mr. Alcock was thrown back into the top but managed to hold the lines and stop the horse. Dr. Bass was dragged about 50 feet and his overcoat was torn to tatters. His nose was lacerated and his left knee badly bruised.

Mr. Alcock sustained a few bruises and was dragged almost to Kentucky avenue. Both consider themselves fortunate. The buggy was slightly damaged.

AFFECTED BY WEATHER
Railroads for December Show Only a Slight Increase in Earnings.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 12.—All railroads in the United States reporting for December show total gross earnings of $22,213,382, an increase of 1.1 per cent, compared with December last year. The same roads for November and October reported a gain of 3 per cent and 11 per cent, respectively. While the December showing is not regarded as altogether satisfactory, it is due to temporary conditions, labor troubles in the northwest reducing earnings in that section, the Great Northern system alone showing a decrease of over 12 per cent, and unfavorable weather, which interfered with railroad traffic. It must also be taken into consideration that earnings during December, 1908, had greatly improved, several roads reporting increases over the heavy earnings of 1907 and 1908.

HE SHOT OF THE END OF HIS TRIBE WHILE HUNTING.

While out hunting yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of Oaks Station, Mr. J. D. O'Brien, a well known grocer of Mechanicsburg, accidentally shot off the end of the thumb of his right hand. The wound was given temporary attention there and dressed here as soon as he returned. Mr. O'Brien was accompanied by Tim Mosley, Trainmaster at Oaks and Mr. Winnell, section foreman of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad.

WORK WITH QUAKER EXTRACTS CONTINUES TO ROUSE WILDEST ENTHUSIASM

RHEUMATISM, CATARRH AND GENERAL STOMACH TROUBLES VANISH LIKE MIST BEFORE THE MOONING SUN. CHUCKING CROWDS CRAVE TO CONVERSE AT McPHERSON'S DRUG STORE, BUT HE MANAGES TO PROVE TO ALL THE MARVELOUS POWERS OF QUAKER EXTRACT AND OIL OF BALM.

Each succeeding day brings forth continued wonderful results. It seems the more remarkable are the cures produced by Quaker Extract and Oil of Balm. Not only are the city people singing praises of the greatest remedies ever introduced here, but reports from villages and towns within a radius of 50 miles from Paducah show that they are reaping the results of Quaker. It is hard to say what particular complaints predominate here, but certainly rheumatism, catarrh and stomach troubles are very common. As these are complaints for which Quaker Extract and Oil of Balm are particularly recommended, the hundreds of cures already reported should certainly convince all that no mistake can be made in at least giving these remedies a fair trial. Children who are pale, nervous and puffy, restless in their sleep, who grip their teeth, pick their nose, bite their nails, or whose breath is foul, may be suffering from worms, which will surely be expelled by Quaker Extract. Any person having a tapeworm should take advantage of the opportunity now to prove that Quaker Extract will get

$500,000,000 IN TRADE AT STAKE

IN GAME BETWEEN UNITED STATES AND GERMANY.

Bitter Fight Fought For It Seems That Knox and German Ambassador Will Not Agree

ON A TARIFF ARRANGEMENT

Washington, Jan. 12.—Nearly half a billion dollars worth of trade is at stake in the game of diplomacy in progress between America and Germany. On February seventh, in accordance with the notice given to Germany last April, the reciprocity arrangement, made under the terms of the Dingley act with Germany will expire, and simultaneously the general tariff rates of that country will apply to all imports from America, unless Knox and the German ambassador meanwhile reach a satisfactory understanding. The indication is that this understanding is beyond attainment and that the two nations can compose their differences only after a bitter and costly struggle. America will not be the only sufferer, for on April 7, the maximum tariff rates carried on the Payne-Aldrich tariff act will automatically apply to the vast German import trade, which in 1908 aggregated more than one hundred and sixty million dollars, and every article of German production must pay a 25 per cent increase duty. The negotiations have been in progress for months to avoid this but the obstacle reached in the United States is the demand for a relaxation of the German prohibition against American cattle. Germany holds that these restrictions are founded on veterinary and sanitary reasons, and cannot be regarded properly as discriminatory. America in 1908 shipped to Germany, her second best customer, three hundred million dollars worth of products. Many of these had to pay increased duty. In the same year twenty-nine million dollars worth of American wheat entered Germany; this must pay a penalty of two marks for each hundred kilograms this year, which will probably result in the transfer of all this trade to Argentina, Canada and Russia. Corn was shipped to Germany to the value of $5,000,000 in 1908. The increased duty on this staple will be three marks per hundred kilograms, practically prohibitory. Only a small number of American products were in abrogation in the French reciprocity agreement while the German tariff covers the whole range of imports.

Queer Things About Expense Accounts For Traveling on Government Business

Washington, Jan. 12 (United Press).—Government expense accounts are funny things. Why should a clerk in the interior department five times as much to go to a certain point in the state of Washington as it does for the secretary, his superior officer, to make the trip to Honolulu and certain western points? Why should it cost the commissioner of the general land office only one-half what it cost the clerk that accompanied him on the same trip? Why should it cost a man in the interior department seven or eight times as much to take a trip down to Alabama, Mississippi and Florida as it does for an employee of the post-office department to go to Spokane, Portland and San Francisco? Why is it that a very large proportion of the long travel items that are turned in by government employees seem to be for trips to the north in winter and to the south in the summer time? According to the accounts of the postmaster general, secretary of the interior and the interstate commerce commission, submitted to congress for its approval, one of the clerks in the general land office is the most expensive traveler in the three departments mentioned. He turned in a bill for $5,747.85 on account of a trip to the state of Washington to "examine surveys in the Rimnitch Colville Indian reservation, Washington." If the reservation had not been diminished by the Indians carelessly giving away or selling their land, this clerk's expense account would possibly have been some larger. In July, 1908, Secretary Garfield took a trip to the Sandwich Islands and various points in western states and spent only $1,057, or much less than one-fifth of what he cost the land office clerk to look over that dwindling Indian domain. The smallest account submitted among the papers is that of B. L. Andrus, superintendent of the mail lock repair shop of the postoffice de-

PROCRUSTINATION

CAUSED ARREST OF THE ENGLISH ON PRISON CHARGE.

He Delayed Getting Out of Town as Ordered by the Police Judge.

Had Isaac England, colored, left Paducah before 6 o'clock Monday evening, he probably would have avoided arrest on a felony charge, for which he is now being held by the police. The charge is obtaining money by false pretenses and the question to be determined is whether he was employed at the time he bought $2.05 worth of medicine at Houda's drug store, Ninth and Tennessee streets. England was tried Monday morning on the charge of disorderly conduct, and Judge Cross suspended a judgment of $100 fine and 30 days in jail on condition he leave town. England did not go and in the meantime Roy and Stewart Bond, who read of the case in The Evening Sun, swore out a warrant against him. Yesterday evening at 6 o'clock he was arrested and locked up. England claims he was employed by the Illinois Central railroad, when he bought the goods. The records of Foreman Osborn, of the labor gang, show that England had been previously employed as a laborer. In police court the case was continued until tomorrow morning to allow further investigation. The case against Harry Anderson, charged with violating an ordinance, was continued until Thursday morning.

Lat Collier was dismissed of a charge of breach of the peace. Babe Vasquez was fined $5 for rail-record to request that the legislature pass such a bill. The doctors of the state also knowing the vast quantities of opium and morphine that were sold, seeing daily thousands of sufferers addicted to this habit, endorsed the resolution of the association and went strongly on record in support of the act.

It is a known fact that a habitue can be broken of this vile habit if his supply is taken away, when the habitue learns and knows that he can no longer obtain his supply. When the drug slave knows he can no longer obtain his daily poison, he will gradually but surely lose his unnatural craving.

The Statistics. Statistics compiled by the department of commerce and labor show that there were imported into the United States 432,866 pounds of opium, of the value of $2,437,940. For the twelve months ending June, 1909, the enormous total of 609,441 pounds of opium, of the value of $2,794,579, were imported into the various ports of the United States, being nearly an increase of 33 1/3 per cent. in the amount of opium imported into the United States in one year.

For the ten years ending last June 5,184,612 pounds of crude opium, worth $12,766,266, and 1,475,852 pounds of manufactured opium of the value of $12,193,347 were imported.

Other States Have Acted. Other states appreciating the horrors of vice and misery due to the use of opium and morphine and mandating have passed stringent laws preventing the free and promiscuous sale of the vile and dangerous narcotics.

Georgia, Alabama, California, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming, the District of Columbia, the territory of Alaska and our Pacific possessions, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands, all forbid the sale of opium or morphine or their derivatives, except on the original prescription of a legally qualified physician, surgeon or dentist.

In the state of Louisiana opium and its derivatives can only be sold to physicians, dentists and druggists, and not to the general public. Pad-

THE LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS

CHRISTMAS ANNOUNCEMENT

THE Company has allotted extraordinary BONUS to its Industrial policy-holders payable in 1910. These are CASH BONUSES which may be used in payment of premiums upon their Industrial policies. They were not promised in the policies, either expressly or by implication, the policies being strictly non-participating. No such bonus has ever been given by any company to its policy-holders, and no such bonus ever will be given by any other company.

BONUSES TO LIVING POLICY-HOLDERS

To every holder of an Industrial whole life policy of the Company who shall pass the age of 75 during 1910, a bonus on its anniversary date thereafter equal to premiums for..... 52 weeks
To every holder of an Industrial policy in force issued in 1879 and 1880, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for..... 26 weeks
To every holder of an Industrial policy in force issued in 1881-2-3-4-5, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for..... 20 weeks
To every holder of an Industrial whole life policy in force issued in 1886-7-8-9-1890, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for..... 15 weeks
To every holder of an Industrial whole life policy in force issued in 1891-2-3-4-5, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for..... 10 weeks
To every holder of an Industrial whole life or increasing life and endowment policy issued in any year from 1896 to 1905 inclusive, a bonus on its anniversary date equal to premiums for..... 5 weeks

These bonuses are thus for percentages varying from about TEN to ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. of the amount of weekly premiums for a year. It will be observed that the bonuses are graduated by the age of the policies.

The whole life policies issued between January 1, 1907, and July 1, 1909, have received a reversionary dividend of about ten per cent. of their face during the past year (that is, have been increased in amount about ten per cent.). This cost the Company $600,000 in 1909; and will cost many hundreds of thousands of dollars in subsequent years in increased Reserve. The whole life policies, issued since July 1, 1909, have been increased about ten per cent. in amount above the amount of insurance previously provided for the same respective premiums.

BONUSES ON DEATH CLAIMS

Death Claimants on whole life policies issued between January 1, 1907, and July 1, 1909, whose claims had been settled, have received in the last six months a payment of mortuary bonuses of about ten per cent. in addition to the amount previously received, at a cost to the Company of over $250,000.

Payment on Death Claims in 1910 will be increased over and above the face of the Industrial policies by amounts determined by the following scale:

When death occurs after policy has been in force over 5 years.....	5%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 10 years.....	10%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 15 years.....	15%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 20 years.....	20%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 25 years.....	25%
When death occurs after policy has been in force over 30 years.....	30%

The cost to the Company of these CASH bonuses is estimated at $5,204,639.95

Added to the bonuses heretofore paid for the last sixteen years OVER AND ABOVE THE PROMISES MADE IN THE POLICIES, this will bring the total CASH bonuses up to Twenty-one Millions of Dollars in CASH in 17 Years!

The Additional Cost of Concessions in Reserve Liability has been Four Millions of Dollars

The sources of these bonuses are:

1. Decrease in expenses—TEN PER CENT. in nine years to the close of 1908.
2. Saving in the Mortality which was expected when policies were issued.
3. Gains in interest actually earned over the amount required by statute for accumulation of Reserves.
4. The fact that on a premium income of nearly $50,000,000 a year the Stockholders receive only $140,000, which is more than earned from the income of their own capital and surplus; the balance of such income going to the increase of the fund from which Bonuses are paid.

PUG DOG
WAS RUN OVER AND KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE.

Owner Seeks to Recover Fifty Dollars Damages From Driver of the Auto.

Absence of witnesses caused a continuance of the suit of James Todd against C. S. Hookwater in the quarterly court yesterday afternoon. Todd filed suit for $50 damages as the result of the killing of an English pug dog by the automobile of Mr. Hookwater. It has been tried in the quarterly court, but the jury failed to agree. The case has been fought bitterly. Former Patrolman E. H. Morris, who "pinched" many automobiles for speeding last summer, is a star witness for Todd and claims that Mr. Hookwater was running at a speed of 20 miles an hour. Mr. Hookwater says he was running at the rate of five miles an hour. The Loving One's Work. If a man doesn't love his work, he had better get something else to do. But the trouble is that such people will hardly love any kind of work. The trouble is in them. They lack intelligence. If they knew enough to know good work, they would soon learn to love it. The manual training scheme has this in view—to surround the job a man is doing with such intelligence and taste as will make it attractive to him.

"The man who is in love with his job gets more contentment out of life than any other," says Brander Matthews; and he gets a great part of his contentment in doing his work right. No man can love his work who shirks. No man can be contented who is dishonest about his work. This is shirking or doing it negligently. So these things always go together—honest work, contentment, and love of the job.—Ohio State Journal.

On this day appeared before me,
R. D. MacMillan, business manager of The Sun, who affirms the above statement is true, to the best of his knowledge and belief.

PETER PURYEAR,
Notary Public, McCracken Co., Ky.
My commission expires January 10, 1912.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12.

Don't be afraid to take a day off occasionally. It is necessary for good work.

Paducah is becoming something of a tobacco market.

Tom Lawson promises to do much to the tobacco trade. We'll be more conservative than we were in the case of Dr. Cool.

Joe Cannon is going to enforce the drastic rule against paying. It is none too soon; for the insurgents
are determined on paring the rules.

At the meeting of the committee
of the whole of the general council
to discuss the commission form of government, one member made an elaborate speech on Jeffersonian
simplicity in opposing the innovation,
and another declared his deep conviction that "a poor fellow, like me, wouldn't have a chance." Truly advancement is a work of education.

Lent comes early this year—Ash
Wednesday on February 9 and Easter on March 27. In the secular calendar Washington's birthday falls on Tuesday; St. Patrick's day on Wednesday; Memorial day on the Fourth of July on Monday; election day November 5, Thanksgiving November 24, and Christmas on Sunday.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has abandoned its blanket form and adopted
the neat seven column make-up; but
to those of us, who learned to read
from its pages, and whose earliest recollections embrace a floor littered with its pages, it will not be the same paper. We had thought the Enquirer was one of the permanent things that never change, even in form.

THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR.
High cost of living and the cost of high living are truly transferable
terms; but call it what one will, the problem is interesting the people of this country, and the solution of it is going to affect the social conditions of the whole world. To begin with,
people in this country live better than they do anywhere else in the world, and save more money, besides. We are not ringing in any aggravating "per capita" valuations
to show how wealth would be distributed, if it were distributed; we are talking about the wage error. He is living in a better house in better
style, educating his children better
and saving more than are the wage earners of Europe. We have the report of Samuel Gompers for this.

But, we are not accustomed to measure our achievements, style of living or any of our economic conditions with those of any other country. We do not measure them with anything but our desires, and our measure lengthens as we attain higher planes of living and our vision is enlarged. The American wage earner wants more tomorrow, because he has more today. He is just a human being, that is all, and he is developing. This desire for more is a good sign in an optimist.

Higher living has much to do with the higher cost of living. There is no doubt about this. If the average continental European working man gets meat once a day, he is in markedly good circumstances. Our natives of continental Europe are living in this country, who can tell you the fact that they didn't eat meat once a week over there. We not only eat meat two or three times

a day, but are particular about the cut we buy. For 20 years the country boys have been flocking to the cities; for ten years farmers have been encroaching on the western ranges; and for that length of time
the city population has been multiplying at a prodigious rate, while the rural population has not nearly kept pace. In New England farms have been abandoned, and the effort to feed the dense population of that section draws on the resources of all the country.

The same may be said of other farm products to a degree. Added to this, no doubt, is the modern tendency to combination and co-operation, which has concentrated the food supply in the hands of an understanding few. They would not be human if they did not attempt to profit by their opportunity.

America is just reaching the stage
of development in which all her territory is being occupied. She has not reached the stage in which all her resources are being worked to their highest pitch of intensified industry, as Europe has. Consequently,
we feel the pinch, and we are looking for someone to blame it on to.

Fortunately, at the auspicious moment there was raised up Theodore Roosevelt, a philosopher and a student of history, who through circumstances of youth was forced into intimate acquaintance with the raw west. He applied his knowledge of history to his knowledge of the west, and through four years of earnest endeavor pounded into the national consciousness the necessity of conserving our national resources against the time of dire need. Thus America has been forced into her
first step toward the centralization of national authority.

The curbing of the organizations,
which control the output of the necessities of life, and the transportation lines, is impelling us toward another and further step in the same direction.

Meanwhile trades unions are slowly
but surely forcing up the price of labor, and demanding governmental protection in their employment, thus arousing the public to a realization of its interest in the relations between capital and labor.

What is the solution of the problem of the cost of living? And what will be the outcome?

The outcome we shall leave to the providence, that rules all things. As to the first, we will name two solutions that won't be adopted: retrenchment in style of living and free trade; for the first offers no benefit and the second no relief. It would produce a corresponding reduction in wages and loss of employment and result only in misery and degradation.

Unquestionably the profitability
of farming will attract men back to the country during the next decade
and to a considerable extent restore the economic balance. The other side of the problem is chiefly concerned with the working out of the theory of democracy and the testing of its possibilities. We are experimenting largely in cities today with the popular primary, the short ballot and the commission government
—all with a view of ascertaining
how we can devise a system that will rid us of graft and political corruption and insure honest, effective
administration at a minimum cost.
When we have perfected our system
and have confidence in it, we shall be ready to proceed on our national mission. No economic question like that of the cost of living or labor and capital, stands alone. All are conditions of ethical development.

This is a great age in which we are living, to a man who will spare
a moment to look up from his hos-
ing.

PRESS AND PINCHOT.

President Was Right.

That Mr. Pinchot was insubordinate in writing the letter he did to Senator Dilliver, practically upholding Special Agent Glavis, and to a degree justifying Messrs. Price and Shaw in attacking Secretary Ballinger, cannot be denied. That in effect
he defied the president, is unquestioned. As chief executive, bound to maintain his authority and respect for that authority in the eyes of the nation, President Taft could do nothing else than retire Mr. Pin-chot to private life, regardless of the value of the services of the chief forester.

No president can afford to be put in the position of countenancing insubordination or to allow anything
to go on in a branch of the government service that tends to disorganization. Therefore President Taft's action must be considered right by fair-minded men. — Washington Times.

New York World.

The removal of Mr. Pinchot from office was the only course open to President Taft. The letter which the chief forester sent to Senator Dilliver to be read in the senate
was an act of flagrant insubordination. After his reflections upon Mr.
Taft he must have known that his connection with the administration
could no longer be tolerated. No government could be run under methods so demoralizing to discipline. If Mr. Pinchot felt that he was superior to the general instructions issued to all department officials against making unauthorized statements he should have been governed by the personal advice of Secretary Wilson
against writing the Dilliver letter.
But he set himself above all authority.

As the deliberate victim of his own unruliness he has deprived himself of the privilege of posing as a martyr to the cause of the conservation of natural resources. President Taft has been exceedingly patient with him, for this is not the first time Mr. Pinchot has disregarded the ordinary rules of official conduct.
Now that he is out of the government service, he can make his light against Secretary Ballinger and the administration in the open.

Strengthened With People.

In removing from office Clifford Pinchot and his associates in the plot to discredit the administration President Taft has strengthened himself with the people. And it is the people, after all, rather than factional leaders, who have the last
say. It is altogether likely, of course, that Mr. Taft has provided antagonistic Republican politicians
with new fuel to feed the flames of Republican insurgency. This, under the circumstances, is unavoidable,
just as it is impossible that such intersecting strife should not inspire
the democracy with new hope of control of the next house, if not of a still greater victory in 1912. Both these contingencies, however, are further along, and one of them, at least, is exceedingly remote. — Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Only Course Open.

Though the president went out of his way to avoid dismissing Pinchot,
it is plain that no system of government is possible that would permit a subordinate in one department to carry on a public warfare against the head of another, or openly to defy the orders of the chief executive. As the president verily temperately expressed it to Pinchot:

"If your conduct you have destroyed your usefulness as a helpful
subordinate of the government."

The only reason for hesitation in ordering his discharge was that this was just what Pinchot wished and had been seeking. It will gratify his "exaggerated sense of his own importance and make him at once a hero of the insurgents. And now he is free to carry on his warfare in the magazines. Yet the president could have done no less with any sense of the responsibility and dignity of his own high office. — Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Taft Was Patient.

The president has heretofore
treated him with great patience and consideration. But to retain him in office after this latest boyish ebullience of inflated self-importance was simply incompatible with departmental discipline or morale and with the dignity and self-respect of the presidential office.

The president cannot put up with the self-advertising importunities of every departmental whippersnapper.
One trouble with Mr. Pinchot (the radical one, we suspect), is that he is the spoiled child of inherited wealth who has never had a sense of responsibility drilled into him by the necessity of earning a living. — Milwaukee Sentinel.

Forced on President.

This drastic course has been forced upon the president, not by Mr. Pinchot's sensational attacks upon a cabinet officer, "Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, or his sensational attacks upon the administration, but by Mr. Pinchot's deliberate attack upon and open defiance of the president of the United States. That defiance was the letter which Mr.
Pinchot wrote to Senator Dilliver
and persuaded Dilliver to read in the senate. Mr. Pinchot refused to wait for the verdict of the congressional investigation of Secretary Ballinger, the man he accused, but threw down the gauntlet to President Taft, and dared him to punish

him. Pinchot, a friend and protégé
of Theodore Roosevelt. — Detroit Journal.

Flagrant Offender.

The president's letter to Mr. Pin-chot, removing him from the service, puts the case in a light in which the public has not previously been in a position to view it and leaves no possible question of the property of the chief forester's dismissal. The president's statement of the case makes plain the fact that Mr. Pinchot was guilty of insubordination in declining to submit to his immediate chief, the secretary of agriculture, a recommendation regarding the proffered resignation of Mr. Price, and in submitting to the senate, through Senator Dilliver, a statement of the case amounting to a virtual condemnation of the offenses of his assistant and the law
officer in instigating attacks upon the secretary of the interior. Mr. Pinchot's offense was the more flagrant
in that he deliberately chose a time
for the presentation of this statement to the senate to coincide with the president's submission to congress of the attorney general's report upon the Glavis charges against the secretary of the interior. — Washington Star.

Nothing Else to Do.

President Taft's statement of his reasons for removing Mr. Pinchot is unanswerable. It is couched, too, in language of fine restraint and just feeling. The step which he has taken
must have cost him dear, as the admiration and even personal affection
which he has cherished for Mr. Pin-chot have often been freely expressed. But there was nothing else to be done. The dignity of the presidency and discipline in the public service must be upheld at all hazards. Mr. Pinchot well knows that, by the course he has forced to adopt, he exposes himself and his administration to bitter attack. Coming on top of other things, it may lead, as is freely predicted in Washington, to an open breach in the Republican party. In any event, the president has embarked on a stormy
sea. — New York Evening Post.

Pinchot Impossible.

President Taft summed up the case of Pinchot in his letter of dismissal to the forester. He wrote:
"If your own conduct you have destroyed your usefulness as a subordinate to this government." Whatever Mr. Pinchot may have done as forester, and too much credit cannot be given him for that service, he has made himself impossible in this controversy with Secretary Ballinger,
his appeal to the senate contrary to the advice of his department chief
and in open defiance of the president, being the climax. The president took the only course open to him, and his action will be approved,
save by the extreme partisans of the deposed forester. — Boston Herald.

happy possessor of a silver cup,
which he secured as the first prize
in an open contest for ad. writing
in which all the advertisers in the

This prize was offered by the St.

Mich. It is a massive piece of jewelry about 14 inches in height, and weighing about 8 pounds and is of high value as a piece of jewelry.

Mr. McGee may indeed be congratulated upon winning such a val-

value as a piece of jewelry but because he proves his ability in his chosen vocation. He was awarded the prize because of the best pre-

which were sold on the strength of

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly
and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp.
My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable.
Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head
is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker.
I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I
notice a constant improvement.

Hilton-Warford

A pretty home wedding was that of Miss Maudie Hilton and Mr. Emmett Warford this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's father, Mr. J. M. Hilton, two miles from the city on the Paducah-Cairo road. The Rev. M. E. Dold, pastor of the First Baptist church, performed the ceremony which was witnessed by a number of relatives and friends.

The house was attractively decorated in a color motif of pink and white. Pink and white carnations, ferns and palms were used with pretty effect.

Miss Hilton was attended by her sister, Miss Carrie Hilton, the maid of honor, Mr. Marion Warford, of Bagdad, was his brother's best man.

The bride wore a pretty and becoming gown of grey silk trimmed in gold. She wore a picture hat of grey silk carried white carnations. The maid of honor wore an effective in a picturesque costume of old rose silk with hat in suit. She carried pink carnations. Both the bride and her maid of honor are of an attractive brunette type.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. Punch and cake, carrying out the pink and white motif, were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Warford came into Paducah and left immediately on a bridal trip which will include a visit to relatives of the bridegroom. On their return they will begin house-keeping at 621 Jefferson street, which has been recently furnished for their occupancy.

Mr. Warford is a capable official connected with the electrical department of the Paducah Light and Power company. His home is at Bagdad.

Beautiful Collation Complimentary to Visitors.

One of the most brilliant social events of the winter was the collation given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hart in honor of their charming Tennessee guests, Mrs. Julia Shields and Miss Lillian McGavock, of Columbia.

The big ball room of the Three Links building was effectively arranged for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Hart received here and in the with them were: Mrs. Shields and Mr. Virgil Sherrill; Miss McGavock and Mr. Douglas Hagby; Miss Ethel Morrow and Mr. Gus Thompson; Miss Carrie Grundy and Mr. Joe Eckal; Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard S. Wells; Dr. and Mrs. David G. Murrell; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sherrill.

The collation was led by Mr. Douglas Hagby and Miss McGavock. The figures were especially pretty and varied. During the evening delightful fruit punch was served. The punch table was prettily arranged at one end of the ball room. Miss Carrie Grundy and Miss Helen Lowry presided. At 11:30 o'clock delicious sandwiches and coffee were served in the dining-room. The table was effectively decorated with poinsettia massed in a large Russian brass jardiniere.

A number of beautiful costumes added to the brilliancy of the scene. In the receiving party: Mrs. Eckal was most attractive in violet messaline. Mrs. Shields wore a picture gown of blue louisine and silver. Miss McGavock was charming in white messaline and pearls. Mrs. Wells wore silver spangled net over white. Mrs. Murrell wore apricot satin. Mrs. Sherrill was in pink with pearls. Miss Morrow was gowned in blue with silver trimmings. Miss Grundy was in black net over pink chiffon.

The guests included: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCann qualified as guardian of Miss Chloe McCann.

BANKS ELECT

OLD DIRECTORS CHOSEN BY PADUCAH CONCERN.

Mechanics and Farmers Has Three New Men on the Board at Present.

Few changes were made in the directors of the Paducah banks in the annual election of officers which was held yesterday afternoon by a majority of the banks. The second Tuesday in January is scheduled for the annual meeting of stockholders of the national banks throughout the country to meet and elect the directors.

The only change in the board of directors was made by the Mechanics and Farmers Savings bank. Robert Scott, D. W. Cornelson and E. W. Beckman were elected directors to succeed the late Judge J. L. Heth-shares and Harris Hankin and H. H. Scott. All of the new directors are well known business men, and will add strength to the bank.

The City National bank, the American-German National bank, the First National bank, the Globe Bank and Trust company, and the Paducah Banking company re-elected their directors. The directors of the Citizens Savings bank are not elected until June.

THIRD ARBITRATOR RESIGNS.

Chairman Meyer, of Wisconsin Board, Declines to Serve.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Prof. H. H. Meyer, of Madison, Wis., was designated as the third arbitrator in the controversy between the Illinois Central Railroad company and its telegraphers. The board of arbitration will meet in the Federal building, Chicago, on the 17th inst.

Chairman Knapp, of the Interstate Commerce commission, and Dr. Nelb, commissioner of labor, the mediators under the Erdman act, announced today the resignation of Prof. Meyer as the third arbitrator. J. G. Rawn, president of the Monon Route on behalf of the railroad, and J. A. Newman, vice president of the Order of Telegraphers, on behalf of the operators, were appointed arbitrators about two weeks ago by the parties to the controversy. They were unable to agree upon the third member of the board, and it became the duty under the law of the chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission and the commissioner of labor, to designate him.

Prof. Meyer is head of the department of Political Economy in the University of Wisconsin and chairman of the Wisconsin state railroad commission.

Popular Revival.

An old-fashioned camp-meeting revival is in progress at the Third Street Methodist church. The interest is growing and the tidal wave of power is rising. Many have expressed themselves that this week the meeting would be more successful than last week. The increase in attendance proves that the faith of the congregation is not misplaced. Monday night seven souls were saved and testified to their surrender to Christ. The services are particularly free and easy. Every one feels at home and the strangers' heart is warmed by the hearty cordiality and deep sympathy that pervades the congregation and ensly falls into and takes part in the services. The meeting makes you feel that you are in an old-time Holy-Ghost country revival. Evangelist Kiern makes the people realize that each is personally responsible for the success of each service and the people willingly assume this responsibility and liberty take part in every service. Under the energetic and wise leadership of their stirring pastor, the Rev. J. H. Pearson, the members are making a house to house canvass of this section of the town and praying with the people. Next Saturday at 2:30 p. m. in there will be held a children's rally and every child is invited to attend. Services every day at 2:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. contributed.

CHAPTER II.

WHEELER BRAND gazed at the girl, and above his own misery rose his sympathy and thought for her whom he longed to comfort, for the girl of his choice, whom duty said he must cause to suffer. He yearned to take her in his arms and wipe away the tears, but he knew that she would repulse him. He strove with the desire to prove to her his love by assuring her that the attack on her father was ended, but his duty whispered, "No."

And to himself he repeated the "No." For he must go on, and she must endure, and the judge must pay the price. The voice of an outraged people had spoken through the pen of Wheeler Brand, and he was one of those men strong enough to refuse to take the price of silence.

He led the girl he loved to a chair, even as she sobbed and whispered, "Wheeler, Wheeler, Wheeler," endeavoring from her heart's depths. Brand looked down on her with a world of sadness in his eyes. He well knew, and the world would soon know, that those who sit in the high places must pay the penalty for sin, even as the lowliest among us who more blindly go astray.

Judith Bartelmy had been long enough in society to learn the art of the control and the concealment of emotions under many trying circumstances. Probably in any other situation than in one where her father and the man she loved were so deeply concerned, as in the present, she would have been able to retain a larger degree of self composure. Several minutes passed before she was able to speak in evenly balanced tones.

"Wheeler," she finally said, "if any one had told me that you would or could do what you have done against my father, against my family—her voice began to break again—"against me, I would not have believed it. And you have not told me that you will cause my attack."

Brand thought to palliate her. He went himself on a corner of the managing editor's desk and bent toward her as she sat in a chair near him.

"Now, Judith, let me try to explain," he said earnestly. "I think I can make you understand. You see, the Lansing Iron company owned a lot of valuable property—oil ranges, machinery, railroad track, etc. If it had been torn halfway it would now be a worthless producing business, but some of our speculators down town were trying to get hold of it to gamble with. They wanted to milk it, as the saying is, by watering it. They did have a stock market battle or two, which profited nobody but the lawyers on both sides. But they finally got it by juggling it into a receivership, which they never could have done if a United States judge had not been willing to exceed his functions. That judge was your father."

"Since the works shut down," he went on strongly, "the men are out of employment, and the gamblers have got rich because the company's gone broke. That's just what happened, and that's all I said."

"But it wasn't your facts, I tell you. It was your insinuation that was false."

"Not insinuation—interpretation." "Int it wasn't true—it wasn't true," "Oh, yes, it was true, and more."

Judith verged on the hysterical again.

"If you loved me as you pretend to, no matter if you thought it true or not, you could not have written that article."

"Can't you see that I wasn't writing about your father, but about a United States judge?"

"She moved farther away from him. That's the splitting hairs, Wheeler." He walked to her side.

"Judith, please—please don't let's quarrel about this."

"The girl turned to him impulsively. 'Oh, Wheeler, you were on the verge of it, weren't you?' He cast his arms around her. 'You're sorry, aren't you?' She looked fondly into his face. 'And you will take back that article, won't you?'"

"You mustn't ask me to do that; I can't," looking at her earnestly. "You can't?"

Judith drew away from him a step or two. She surveyed him coldly. "Wheeler, I came here thinking only of my father, but I suddenly find myself facing a much more serious question—not what kind of a man he is, but what kind of a man are you?"

Brand was deeply cut by her manner and her intonation.

"Judith, if you only knew the truth, all of it, things I can't tell you, you'd be with me heart and soul in what I'm trying to do."

He caught her in his arms again. "Whatever I've done or whatever I may do I love you," he insisted passionately.

Judith showed equal fervor as she said:

"And you're more to me than my father, but for my sake you mustn't work against him. How could we ever be happy together if you did? You'd do this for me, Wheeler, just this? I want you to carry out your ideals and live up to your high purposes in every other way, but you must not attack him. Promise me that you'll never do it again. Won't you promise me that? And you'll retract that article you had this morning. You'll do this for me, just this?"

"Judith—it's the truth—and, knowing that, would you have me retract it?"

"Yes."

"I can't,"

Judith began to take off the engagement ring Brand had given her. "You don't mean to do that!" he cried in amazement.

"I most certainly do!"

He was almost frantic. He grasped her hand.

"I won't let you mean it. I can't let you go without your ring. You may be Judge Bartelmy's daughter, but you are going to be my wife. You've worn my ring for a month, and you must wear it forever!"

The girl passed his passionate appeal by without heeding it. She tossed back her pretty head defiantly, matching the ring from her finger and threw it on the managing editor's desk.

"I'll not wear it again," she exclaimed resolutely, "unless—until you come to your senses." So expressing herself, she stalked majestically across the room.

"Judith!" called Brand in desperation, fearing that she was about to leave him.

"Will you do what I ask?" she queried imperiously.

"I cannot," he answered simply.

The judge's daughter tossed her head independently, caught her skirt in her hand, turned her back swiftly on Brand and walked indignantly from the room.

Wheeler Brand, dazed, heart sick and discouraged and torn by the emotions that welled within him, leaned helplessly against the desk. After all, he reasoned, what did it all matter? There were lots of evil men in the world, always had been, always would be. What harm would it do if one dishonest judge were allowed to go unmolested, even if he happened to be a United States judge? Surely there were other dishonest judges, and he could not drive all of them off the bench, no. Indeed, and moreover, this thankless task he had shouldered would if he succeeded rob him of the girl he loved. It would rob him of the love of the girl who loved him.

Then the thought of the enthusiasm that had buoyed him as he wrote the story that had exposed Judge Bartelmy came to him and clung to him. The inspiration in doing a strong man's work for the public good outweighed the spirit of Wheeler Brand, captured the soul. The steady light burned once more in his eyes. He shook himself together—fastened his old three grip on himself. As for Judith, he would do his duty, and he would win her yet.

When the managing editor of the Advance re-entered his office and walked briskly toward his desk he found Wheeler Brand looking eagerly over a notebook which, quite unknown to McHenry, contained the data for an article on the Lansing Iron case even more damaging to Judge Bartelmy than the one already printed.

"Well, did you settle it?" asked McHenry.

Brand looked up and started toward the door.

"Yes, sir," he answered, and he was gone.

At this juncture Downs, the city editor, came into the managing editor's room. He addressed McHenry rapidly.

"Water main burst on Morton street; drowned seven dago kids in the basement of a tenement; mothers, scrub-women, gone out to work and locked them in; water rising." He drew close to the desk. "Children, climbing stairs to escape, found huddled in each other's arms on top step, drowned! All but the youngest laughing on to a string of beads; must have died praying!"

The managing editor's face immediately lightened, and he pounded his desk enthusiastically.

"Good! Good! By glory, that's a dandy! That saves our lives! Now we'll have a paper tomorrow! We'll go the limit on this. Did you send a photographer?"

"Yes, sir, I did."

McHenry seized the office telephone. "Night editor! Oh, hello! Cut three columns more out of those shavings. We've got a live one. Seven dago kids drowned. First time they ever saw water in their lives. Run three columns!" He hung up the receiver and turned to the city editor.

"Put in three leads and make it stick out like a sore thumb. And, say, put in a black faced bulletin saying the Advance will receive subscriptions for their families."

Durkin entered with a bundle of proofs.

"And, say, Downs," added McHenry, "print in bold faced type that the Advance will start the subscription with $100."

"Mr. Dupuy is downstairs," announced Durkin.

The managing editor could not suppress a sour expression which crept across his face. "Dupuy, eh?" he grunted half audibly. "Wonder what he wants around here now? He's a regular buttinski."

McHenry knew Dupuy in a business way, knew he was counsel for several of the big mercantile establishments which advertised in the Advance and that the lawyer had represented various corporations at the state capital.

"Well, I suppose I'll have to see him," he finally resolved. "Show Mr. Dupuy in," he called to the boy.

"Good evening," was Dupuy's greeting.

"And you're more to me than my father, but for my sake you mustn't work against him. How could we ever be happy together if you did? You'd do this for me, Wheeler, just this? I want you to carry out your ideals and live up to your high purposes in every other way, but you must not attack him. Promise me that you'll never do it again. Won't you promise me that? And you'll retract that article you had this morning. You'll do this for me, just this?"

"Judith—it's the truth—and, knowing that, would you have me retract it?"

"Yes."

"I can't,"

Judith began to take off the engagement ring Brand had given her. "You don't mean to do that!" he cried in amazement.

"I most certainly do!"

He was almost frantic. He grasped her hand.

"I won't let you mean it. I can't let you go without your ring. You may be Judge Bartelmy's daughter, but you are going to be my wife. You've worn my ring for a month, and you must wear it forever!"

ing to McHenry as he entered and placed his overcoat on a chair. "Good evening, Mr. Dupuy. What can I do for you?" The visitor seated himself at the right of McHenry's desk.

"McHenry," began Dupuy decidedly.

"You don't mean to do that!" he cried in amazement.

"I most certainly do!"

He was almost frantic. He grasped her hand.

"I won't let you mean it. I can't let you go without your ring. You may be Judge Bartelmy's daughter, but you are going to be my wife. You've worn my ring for a month, and you must wear it forever!"

The girl passed his passionate appeal by without heeding it. She tossed back her pretty head defiantly, matching the ring from her finger and threw it on the managing editor's desk.

"I'll not wear it again," she exclaimed resolutely, "unless—until you come to your senses." So expressing herself, she stalked majestically across the room.

"Judith!" called Brand in desperation, fearing that she was about to leave him.

"Will you do what I ask?" she queried imperiously.

"I cannot," he answered simply.

The judge's daughter tossed her head independently, caught her skirt in her hand, turned her back swiftly on Brand and walked indignantly from the room.

Wheeler Brand, dazed, heart sick and discouraged and torn by the emotions that welled within him, leaned helplessly against the desk. After all, he reasoned, what did it all matter? There were lots of evil men in the world, always had been, always would be. What harm would it do if one dishonest judge were allowed to go unmolested, even if he happened to be a United States judge? Surely there were other dishonest judges, and he could not drive all of them off the bench, no. Indeed, and moreover, this thankless task he had shouldered would if he succeeded rob him of the girl he loved. It would rob him of the love of the girl who loved him.

Then the thought of the enthusiasm that had buoyed him as he wrote the story that had exposed Judge Bartelmy came to him and clung to him. The inspiration in doing a strong man's work for the public good outweighed the spirit of Wheeler Brand, captured the soul. The steady light burned once more in his eyes. He shook himself together—fastened his old three grip on himself. As for Judith, he would do his duty, and he would win her yet.

When the managing editor of the Advance re-entered his office and walked briskly toward his desk he found Wheeler Brand looking eagerly over a notebook which, quite unknown to McHenry, contained the data for an article on the Lansing Iron case even more damaging to Judge Bartelmy than the one already printed.

"Well, did you settle it?" asked McHenry.

Brand looked up and started toward the door.

"Yes, sir," he answered, and he was gone.

At this juncture Downs, the city editor, came into the managing editor's room. He addressed McHenry rapidly.

"Water main burst on Morton street; drowned seven dago kids in the basement of a tenement; mothers, scrub-women, gone out to work and locked them in; water rising." He drew close to the desk. "Children, climbing stairs to escape, found huddled in each other's arms on top step, drowned! All but the youngest laughing on to a string of beads; must have died praying!"

The managing editor's face immediately lightened, and he pounded his desk enthusiastically.

"Good! Good! By glory, that's a dandy! That saves our lives! Now we'll have a paper tomorrow! We'll go the limit on this. Did you send a photographer?"

"Yes, sir, I did."

McHenry seized the office telephone. "Night editor! Oh, hello! Cut three columns more out of those shavings. We've got a live one. Seven dago kids drowned. First time they ever saw water in their lives. Run three columns!" He hung up the receiver and turned to the city editor.

"Put in three leads and make it stick out like a sore thumb. And, say, put in a black faced bulletin saying the Advance will receive subscriptions for their families."

Durkin entered with a bundle of proofs.

"And, say, Downs," added McHenry, "print in bold faced type that the Advance will start the subscription with $100."

"Mr. Dupuy is downstairs," announced Durkin.

The managing editor could not suppress a sour expression which crept across his face. "Dupuy, eh?" he grunted half audibly. "Wonder what he wants around here now? He's a regular buttinski."

McHenry knew Dupuy in a business way, knew he was counsel for several of the big mercantile establishments which advertised in the Advance and that the lawyer had represented various corporations at the state capital.

"Well, I suppose I'll have to see him," he finally resolved. "Show Mr. Dupuy in," he called to the boy.

"Good evening," was Dupuy's greeting.

"And you're more to me than my father, but for my sake you mustn't work against him. How could we ever be happy together if you did? You'd do this for me, Wheeler, just this? I want you to carry out your ideals and live up to your high purposes in every other way, but you must not attack him. Promise me that you'll never do it again. Won't you promise me that? And you'll retract that article you had this morning. You'll do this for me, just this?"

"Judith—it's the truth—and, knowing that, would you have me retract it?"

"Yes."

"I can't,"

Judith began to take off the engagement ring Brand had given her. "You don't mean to do that!" he cried in amazement.

"I most certainly do!"

He was almost frantic. He grasped her hand.

"I won't let you mean it. I can't let you go without your ring. You may be Judge Bartelmy's daughter, but you are going to be my wife. You've worn my ring for a month, and you must wear it forever!"

Stock and 4% Convertible Bonds American Telephone and Telegraph Company

On January 1st, 1909, there was in use, in the United States, one Bell Telephone for every twenty of the entire population. The American Telephone & Telegraph Company, as a Holding Company, owns a majority of the stock of the various local Bell Telephone Companies throughout the United States and Canada, including the Western Electric Company. As an Operating Company it owns and directly operates all the long distance and toll lines connecting the Bell Telephone Systems.

The stability of the Bell System is indicated by the fact that, while 1908 was a year of very marked business depression, yet the number of Bell telephones increased at the astonishing rate of 17%.

A Remarkable Dividend Record for the Past 27 Years

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company and its predecessors have never paid less than 7 1/2% annual dividends in any one year during the past 27 years. The rate for the past 3 years has been 8%. The Company's policy of issuing new stock to its stockholders at par, so valuable in the past, promises even greater future value.

Both the stock and the 4% Convertible Bonds are listed on the Stock Exchanges of Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Boston. We recommend these securities for investment and solicit orders for their purchase. Small orders given equal attention with larger.

FITZGERALD TO BE "HUB'S" MAYOR

LARGEST, QUIETEST ELECTION HISTORY HAS EVER HAD.

Storrow, Nearest Opponent, May Demand Re-count—Voters Line Poles Before 6 a. m.

ELECTED BY CLOSE MARGIN.

Honolulu, Jan. 12.—The biggest, quietest election Honolulu ever knew resulted in the choice of John F. Fitzgerald, former congressman and former mayor, as mayor under the new charter.

Fitzgerald's margin is close—only 240 in a total vote of 93,000 out of a registration of 97,000—and his nearest opponent James J. Storrow, the banker, will likely demand a recount. Mr. Storrow has expended a fortune as the candidate of the Municipal League.

There was a good deal of activity all over the city in the matter of getting votes to the polls, but apparently not a bit of electioneering and practically no disturbance at all except in the Eighth ward, where it is customary, and more in the nature of a formality, like challenging voters. For some time in this ward almost every other voter was challenged in one precinct, but they were all allowed to vote with the protest against them noted.

Even in the Back Bay the vote came out astonishingly early. In every precinct there were lines of citizens awaiting the opening of the polls at 6 a. m., and a heavy percentage of the vote was taken by 9 a. m.

The feature of the election was the great use of motor cars by the workers of the candidates. Mr. Storrow's friends were the best equipped in this respect, and especially in the wards where it was hoped to turn a supposed Fitzgerald lead there were usually two or three automobiles in waiting at each polling place ready to go after the recalcitrant or indolent voters.

Men whose names were not checked by the workers at the last election were awakened from their sleep this morning by the early searchers after votes. An automobile would be at the door, or would call at any hour the voter might designate to get him to the booth. Four or five workers would call between getting up time and leaving time. If a man eluded these there was a watcher on every corner to ask, "Have you voted yet?"

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In older times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price. For sale and recommended by W. J. Gilbert, Special Agent.

conman, who has been conspicuous in the campaign recently as the complainant before the election board concerning the registration of voters in ward 8, was assaulted and seriously injured shortly before 7 o'clock this morning. Mr. Smith's nose was broken in two places and his face was all open. This was the only instance of violence during the day.

HAND-CAR RIDE

RESULTS SERIOUS FOR ATTORNEY C. A. WICKLIFFE.

Tries to Stop It When Train Appears and His Hand Is Caught in the Machinery.

While riding on a hand-car to make connection with a passenger train into Paducah, Attorney C. A. Wickliffe had a narrow escape Monday night. Fortunately his injuries were not serious, although it was necessary to amputate the middle finger of his right hand at the first joint, and it may be impossible to save the forefinger because it was crushed severely.

Mr. Wickliffe has been attending court at Wickliffe, and Monday night he missed the regular passenger train. With a man to assist him, Mr. Wickliffe started from Wickliffe to East Cairo, a distance of three miles, on a hand-car. They were making fair time on the hand-car when a train appeared in sight. Mr. Wickliffe started to apply the hand-brake to stop the car, but he caught his hand between the brake and the frame and he was tossed about on the car. After the accident he returned to Wickliffe, where his injuries were dressed, and he returned to Paducah last night.

HALL THIEF

STEALS OVERCOAT AND HAT WHILE GUEST IS AWAITED.

Federal Clerk Puryear Is Made the Victim of an Audacious House-breaker.

John R. Puryear, clerk of the federal court office at Paducah, is a most amiable, quiet man.

Last night the boldest and most nervous thief that ever entered a dwelling house, touched Mr. Puryear for his heavy black overcoat, a pair of fleece lined gloves and a brand new Stetson hat, which Mr. Puryear received as a Christmas present.

Mr. Puryear hadn't been home five minutes one night before the robbery was committed. After leaving his office at 7:20 o'clock he went directly to his home, 805 Broadway. Hanging his coat and hat on the rack in the hall Mr. Puryear went into the parlor, where his daughter, Miss Latha Puryear, was playing on the piano. They were expecting company every moment. They heard the front door open and shut and after a short pause the front hall door opened and as no one entered Miss Puryear went into the hall. She found the door standing wide open and the coat and hat missing. Mr. Puryear immediately notified the police, but no clue has been found.

River Forecasts.
The Ohio—At the mouth of the Ohio, will continue rising for two or three days. At Paducah and Cairo will continue rising for four or five days. The rise at Cairo will amount to three or four feet in the next 21 hours.

The Wabash—At Mt. Carmel, the stage will depend on movements of the lake.

The Tennessee—At Florence and Alton, will fall during the next 48 hours. At Johnsonville, will continue rising for 36 hours.

The Mississippi—From Chester to above Cairo, not much change until the gorge above Chester break when a sharp rise may be expected. The river at Paducah is rising rapidly and a high stage is looked for. The Back River will be tied up here several days until the ice entirely disappears.

The ferryboat Little Owen, ventured out on the Ohio today to continue her ferry business. She is propelled by a small steam engine.

Two million barrels of coal is coming out of the upper Ohio by 12 boats and the coal shortage along river points will be remedied.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Eagle Packet company was held at the company's wharfboat at the foot of Vine street Monday afternoon. The officers and directors were re-elected. The report of the secretary-treasurer was encouraging and the stockholders expressed satisfaction with the year's results. The officers are: William Layhe, president; T. T. Lewis, vice-president; Henry Layhe, general manager; H. W. Lewis, secretary-treasurer. The directors are: Henry Layhe, William Layhe, T. T. Lewis and W. J. Lewis. The other stockholders in attendance were: S. H. Baker, Alton agent, Henry Layhe and W. H. Layhe."

The breaking of an immense gorge in Alton harbor Monday morning alarmed the McKinley bridge people at St. Louis, although damage was avoided. All of the Eagle packet company's boats there are in safety.

The Clyde is due out of the Tennessee river with the biggest trip of lumber brought out this year.

Four empty coal barges were carried over the falls at Louisville Monday afternoon after having been torn away from their moorings.

The steamer Redway was swept away at Brandenburg, Ky., but was caught several hours later, practically undamaged at Tobinsport, Ind.

TOWBOAT LOVE

A gasoline launch was sighted in midstream here and is floating down with the current, which is running at about the same rate as yesterday. It will be a total loss.

A report reached Paducah this morning that the towboat Pacific, No. 2, with a tow of empties had been swept from West Frankfort, Ind., 24 miles below Evansville and had grounded at Diamond Island above Paducah. However, this could not be verified.

Steamer Missing.
Either coming down the river or sunk is a steamer, belonging to Peckinpaugh & Harrison, of Alton, Ind., a small town above Hannibal. It was anchored in Green river awaiting a lookout for any stray craft while at Paducah towboats are ready to render any assistance. The towboat Leader, that left Paducah for Cincinnati, a few weeks ago, was destroyed at Brandenburg. Capt. Moss Pickelheimer, her owner, is reported to have been aboard.

Heavy packs of ice continue coming past Paducah and the river is almost a solid mass of ice. Both the packetboat, George Cowling, and the ferryboat Little Owen braved the ice today and are making regular trips.

Drifting with the ice from the mouth of the Cumberland river the Nashville and Paducah packetboats, I. H. Richardson, arrived here at 8 o'clock this morning. Her wheel was slightly damaged and she tied up. It was impossible for her to run among the chunks of ice.

Rescuers.
Yesterday afternoon people at Hindsville sighted the towboat Love and her fleet drifting with the ice. A message was flashed to Smithland to try and stop it. At Hindsville two men, whose names could not be learned, got in a yawl and after dangerous work and halfhearted escapes from drowning they succeeded in boarding the boat. Half the crew were compelled to walk over the ice, dragging the yawl, which they pulled on board.

At Smithland the message was received and the packetboat Ohio, owned by Capt. McCandless and Kuebler, of Toledo, got up steam and waited for the boat to appear. Plunging into the ice the Ohio succeeded in making fast to the Love and pulled her from the packed ice into the Cumberland river. The amount of the damage to her and the other boats is not known.

The Love was formerly the George H. Cowling and ran between Paducah and Metropolis. She is now the property of Captains I. N. Fischer and John H. Mueller. The value of the boat was $35,000. When the Love ran between here and Metropolis she was a packetboat, but was afterwards converted into a towboat and is said to be one of the best for her size on the Ohio river. She was recently rebuilt and was practically a new boat.

No Loss.
Mr. C. M. Hiker, general manager of the West Kentucky Coal company here, said his company suffered no loss. The towboat Egan is owned by the coal company and did splendid work in rescuing the loaded barges valued at many thousands of dollars. The three barges included in the towboat Love's fleet were half sunk when caught here. The Egan was on the lookout all last night for any boat floating helplessly in the ice packs.

Below Paducah no damage has been reported. Precautions have been taken at Joppa, Metropolis and Brookport, Ill., is situated in a dangerous spot as ice packs her banks on either side.

The thickness of the ice was especially noted here today. Hundreds of people have visited the river to see the sight. The Ohio is rising and if the weather remains warm, it is believed the ice will pass out altogether in a few days. However, if it turns cold again the ice may last many days longer. Ice is filling the Ohio from Cairo up to the upper stream and is coming out thickly from the headwaters.
